

SEEK TO IMPEACH STATE'S WITNESS

Counsel for Thomas Vance Attacks Testimony of Clara Wunderlich.

RELY ON THE TRANSCRIPT

Stories Told in Court Today and in Preliminary Hearing Do Not Conform to Contention.

The taking of testimony in the Vance murder trial began today before a jury in Judge Armstrong's division of the district court. Up to the hour of noon three witnesses had been examined, and the only feature of the session was the attempt of Judge Maginnis, of counsel for defense, to impeach the testimony of Mrs. Clara Wunderlich, the second witness called by the state.

Today Mrs. Wunderlich testified that on Nov. 26, when she was attracted to her back door by the screams of children in the Vance home next door, that Mrs. Vance came out of the house and asked Mrs. Wunderlich to telephone for the police. "What for?" asked Mrs. Wunderlich, to which Mrs. Vance replied, "Tom Vance, the brute that I call husband, is killing me." Picking up a transcript of the case and advancing in front of the witness, Judge Maginnis read to Mrs. Wunderlich her testimony given at the preliminary hearing, which was to the effect that the witness had not used the words "is killing me," when testifying for the first time. Mrs. Wunderlich started to explain by saying that she had made a subsequent statement to the county attorney, and Mr. Hanson arose and offered Judge Maginnis a paper, but the latter brushed the document aside and said that he was dealing only with the evidence as it had been originally given.

ANOTHER DISCREPANCY.
Again an apparent discrepancy was discovered by counsel in the testimony of Mrs. Wunderlich. She stated today that when she first called upon Mrs. Vance, she found her sitting at a table, and after the assault complained of, Mrs. Vance was very nervous and complained of a headache. Counsel read from the transcript that on the 27th of November, Mrs. Wunderlich testified that Mrs. Vance seemed all right at that time.

Mrs. Wunderlich detailed today the events of Nov. 26, when the trouble occurred in the Vance household. The rest of the day and the forenoon of the day following Mrs. Vance complained of being ill. On the 27th of November, she had been asked to have a cup of coffee with Mrs. Vance. This was early in the forenoon. About 2 o'clock Mrs. Vance, who was sitting at a table, was asked to come to her mother. She found Mrs. Vance very ill and vomiting blood. She gave her a drink of brandy and a headache. Seeing a glass upon the machine near the bed she asked if it was clear water. Mrs. Vance queried, "Why do you ask?" Witness noticed that the water was bubbling on the water and she emptied it and got a clean glass and fresh water and gave Mrs. Vance a drink. The woman grew worse during the afternoon and night. Next morning her gums were swollen and black. That was Thanksgiving day, Nov. 23, and that day Mrs. Vance was taken to the hospital. Witness saw her there once afterwards, Dec. 2, when the patient was greatly changed, her face being puffed and swollen.

SAW WOMAN KICKED.
Mrs. Helen Abraham, an aged Syrian peddler, took the stand shortly before the noon recess. An interpreter was employed, as the woman cannot understand nor speak the English language. She told of going to the Vance home about noon on Nov. 26, when she saw the back door of the house, and through an open door saw a woman lying on the floor and saw a man kick the woman.

OPENING STATEMENT.

In his opening statement on behalf of the state, Mr. Looftbourrow detailed the difficulty that occurred in the Vance home on Nov. 26, 1907. It was to the effect that at the mid-day meal on that day, Mrs. Vance, wife of Thomas Vance, poured for her husband a cup of coffee. He complained to her that he had filled the cup too full, that he had told her he only wanted a part cup full. Upon her replying that she had not heard him to that effect, he became angry and told her that she had better say that she did not hear, rather than that she did not hear. Upon her protest to make the correction, he threw the contents of the cup at her, the liquid striking her in the face and chest. The cup flew out of her hands and fell to the back of him. He then struck her and knocked her down. She arose went to the back door and calling a neighbor asked her to telephone for the police. In reply to a question as to who she wanted arrested, Mrs. Vance said, "Tom Vance, the brute I call husband." Mrs. Vance re-entered the house and the attack was renewed, according to the statement, and Vance kicked his wife in the abdomen. During the remainder of the day and night Mrs. Vance felt the ill effects of the alleged mistreatment.

Next day while she was lying down, still ill, Vance, it is alleged came home, and not seeing his wife, asked the children where she was. He then went into the room, but Mrs. Vance turned her face away, not desiring to see him. His peculiar actions, however, caused her to watch him, and in a dying statement she said she believed that at the time he indicated he put something into a cup of water that she had placed near her bed. She drank a part of the water shortly afterwards and soon became very ill. Next day she was taken to St. Mark's hospital, and continued to grow steadily worse until Dec. 6, when she died. The prosecution claimed that the witness revealed a condition of the stomach indicating poison, although no poison was actually found in the stomach, the claim being made that bi-chloride mercury the poison claimed to have been administered, leaves no traces after the lapse of 24 hours.

ACTION MUST BE IN EQUITY.

Judge Marshall Rules on Action
Brought to Cancel Naturalization.

Judge John A. Marshall of the United States court this morning handed down a decision in the case of the United States against David R. Brown, in which it was sought to cancel the certificate of citizenship procured by Brown in 1901. The decision was to the effect that equity proceedings must be brought in the case before the certificate can be cancelled, and that it cannot be done by a proceeding at law. The complaint was filed by Dist. Atty. H. E. Booth on July 23, 1908. The facts of the case only then came to light through the application of the defendant for a civil service examination, and when it was learned that he was a naturalized citizen the date of his papers was brought into question, and the entire proceedings were investigated.

It seems that Brown, who is a native of Great Britain, came to the United States in the year 1888, at which time he was 21 years of age. He left England on the 25th of June, 1888, and on April 27, 1891, he applied to the Third district court in the Territory of Utah and secured papers declaring him a citizen. H. G. McMahon was then clerk of the court, and he transacted the business and issued the papers to Brown, upon the latter's affidavit that he had been in the United States the required length of time, or five years. It was afterwards learned that he had made his affidavit three months too early, and had he waited until July he would have been entitled to the papers.

These facts are acknowledged by Mr. Brown; unintentionally he made the affidavit before he should have done, and he is willing to have the matter declared as to the papers and begin all over again. The proceeding was therefore brought in law, but Judge Marshall refused to dismiss the action without prejudice as to the law proceeding and ordered it brought in equity.

TANGLE IN SMITH FAMILY.

Wife Seeks Police Aid to Assure Her
Peace of Mind.

Domestic infelicity; a suit for divorce; threats to kill; a rush to police headquarters for protection; an attempt to escape, and capture by the police, are a few incidents associated with the family troubles of James Smith. The latter now occupies a cell in the city jail while Mrs. Smith is pursuing the even tenor of her ways, secure in the belief that she will not be murdered and that she will soon be freed from a matrimonial yoke that has, so she declares, been a grievous burden.

The dramatic incidents referred to occurred Saturday evening when Mrs. Isabella Smith, who conducts the R. A. fraternity house for the students of the university at 79 Twelfth East street, rushed into the desk sergeant's office at the police station and declared she was in fear of her life. That her husband, James, had threatened to kill her within three days because she had filed a suit for divorce, and that she wanted to be locked up in jail to preserve her life. While she was pouring out her tale to the desk sergeant her husband, James Smith, stood in the doorway behind her. Patrolman McCormack, who was standing near, was instructed to escort the couple into Lieut. Hempel's office and lay the case before that official. As McCormack escorted the couple, Mrs. Smith, the former made a bolt for the door and ran to First South street and thence toward South Temple. McCormack gave chase and fired three shots in the air to frighten Smith, but the latter only ran the faster. McCormack cut across the street and headed the man off. Smith then doubled in his tracks and ran back to First South street, where he was gathered in by Patrolman Gillespie. The couple were then taken to Lieut. Hempel's office, where Mrs. Smith told her sad story. She declared that her husband had treated her cruelly and that she had filed a suit for divorce. The hearing of which is set for Tuesday. She said she was about to board a car to come down town to do some shopping when her husband came up to her and declared she would not be alive in three days. She said the man followed her down town and she decided to appeal to the police for protection. Smith followed her to the station and then tried to get away rather than face the lieutenant.

Mrs. Smith stated that she separated from her husband about three years ago and that he had failed to provide for her in any way. She also alleged that Smith repeatedly called upon her, demanded money, wanted to "make up" and finally began threatening her life. She declared she was afraid the man would kill her and she started a suit for divorce.

Smith was locked up and is being held pending further investigation and the probabilities are that he will be placed under bonds to keep the peace. Mrs. Smith departed with a sigh of relief when assured she would be safe from any attempts on the part of the man to attack her.

GOLTRA TALKS ABOUT POSTAL CONDITIONS

President of National Federation of Postal Clerks Discusses Matters
Needing Remedy.

Edward B. Goltra, Chicago, president of the National Federation of Postoffice clerks, was yesterday the guest of Salt Lake Union No. 6. He delivered an address before the union at Federation hall at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, making a plea for organized effort in behalf of the betterment of the condition of the postoffice clerks, and explaining conditions as they exist and the difficulties which have to be fought by the organization. Mr. Goltra spoke at some length, but his talk was interesting and showed his thorough acquaintance with his subject. He advocated a sentiment of opposition to what is known as the Civil Service bill, a measure introduced into Congress providing for the pensioning of the postal clerks when retired for old age. While the bill in some respects is right, he said, Goltra said there were objectionable features in it which should be eliminated. "One provides that the postoffice clerks pay sufficient out of their salaries to provide for the annuity to be given them by the government at retirement. 'Why should we pay out of our pensions?' asked Mr. Goltra, 'any more than any other government employees?'"

The speaker said all postal clerks are in Chicago in the month of October, 1909, and he said he had learned from that office alone on account of the low pay, according to the Civil Service bill, conditions have been bettered, however, from but it is the constant effort of the national organization to work for more pay and better conditions for the postoffice clerks.

After the address, Mr. Goltra was under a banquet. While in Salt Lake he is the guest of J. Everett Seely, president of the Salt Lake local union.

NOTABLE MAN AT REST.

Many Friends Assemble to Pay Tribute to "Charlie" Barrell.

In spite of the inclement weather the Eighteenth ward chapel was filled with friends, associates and workers of the late H. C. Barrell at noon yesterday, when the funeral services were held. In the gathering many who had obtained their first training in music from the late H. C. Barrell, among them being John Hold, who brought a brass quartet and rendered "My God, Be Thou Here" very effectively as a tribute to the deceased. The speakers of the occasion were C. H. Wilken, A. M. Musser, Hamilton G. Park and Duncan McAllister, all of whom are associates of the deceased. President Charles F. Smith was the closing speaker, and his remarks were full of encouragement and advice to the bereaved family. The Eighteenth ward choir, of which Mr. Barrell had been a member, furnished the music, with H. S. Ensign singing "Face to Face" and Spencer Clawson, Jr., rendering, by request, the family favorite hymn of the departed, entitled "The Last Hope."

A long procession of carriages followed the music, to the final resting place at the city cemetery.

ROBBERS AT LEIGH HOME.

Jewelry Valued at One Thousand Dollars Taken By Visitors.

The arrest of several robbers during the past 10 days does not seem to put a stop to the robbing of houses. Between 7 and 9 o'clock last evening the residence of Mrs. Clint B. Leigh, 123 1/2 U street, was broken into while Mrs. Leigh and her two children were away from home, and about $1,000 worth of jewelry stolen. The robbers had evidently been watching the house and when the family left they lost no time in gaining entrance by cutting the wire screen of the back door, breaking the glass and unlocking the door. Bureau drawers, trunks and closets were emptied of their contents and every room in the house was turned topsey turvy. Everything of value in the shape of jewelry was taken except a gold watch which had initials on and some silverware. The thieves secured the following articles: Two diamond and one pearl rings, an old-fashioned pearl brooch, pendant necklace and two old silver half-dollars.

FUNERAL OF ELA ROGERS.

The funeral of Ella Rogers was held Sunday afternoon in the Farmington chapel, Bishop Henry Robinson presiding. Deceased was the daughter of George and Della Rogers. Her death followed a peculiar accident at her home in Farmington. While standing on a couch reaching for a picture hanging on the wall, she overbalanced and in falling to the floor struck her head. The accident rendered her unconscious and she never recovered. She was a sufferer from rheumatism, and recently was operated upon in this city for appendicitis, but had entirely recovered from this operation when stricken.

NOODLE HOUSE ROBBED.

A Chinese noodle house at 20 Commercial street was robbed last night. The thief, who was a Chinese, was a good description. The man went into the noodle place and gave an order. While the man was waiting for a bowl of noodles the stranger seized $6 from the cash drawer and fled down the street and disappeared. The thief was reported to the police and officers are trying to locate the law.

BROWN DIES OF INJURIES.

Well Known Citizen Meets Fatal Accident in Path of Runaway.

W. D. Brown, aged 76 years, residing at 281 Fourth avenue, was the victim of a fatal accident which occurred Saturday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock on Main and First South street. He was knocked down by a runaway and died from the injuries he received. Death relieving his sufferings at 2 o'clock Sunday morning at his late residence.

At the time of the accident Mr. Brown was waiting to take a car to his home. He was about to board the car when his attention was attracted by the shouts of several persons on the crowded streets. He turned around and placed himself directly in the path of a runaway and the next instant was struck, hurled to the ground and the hind feet of the frightened horse trampled upon him.

A number of those who witnessed the accident rushed to the aged man's assistance and carried him to the drug store. It was found that the ribs in his right side had been crushed in, all of them being broken, one piercing his lung. He was otherwise injured internally and received a severe wound on the head.

Dr. W. F. Beer was summoned and pronounced Mr. Brown's injuries fatal. The physician wanted the injured man taken to a hospital, but Mr. Brown declined to go, saying he wanted to go to his home where he was married and where he had lived for 45 years. His wish was granted and he was quickly removed to his home.

Everything possible was done for the victim of the accident, but he passed away about 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

The runaway outfit belonged to the McCoy stables and had been engaged by a man named Johnson who had offices in the Hooper building on east First South street. Mr. Johnson left the horse tied in front of the building and had gone to his office when the animal became frightened and breaking away, dashed down the street. After striking Mr. Brown the frightened animal dashed down First South to West Temple street where the buggy collided with a pole and was demolished.

WHITE MAN KILLS INDIAN.

Saloon Brawl Ends in Death at Theodore, Wasatch County.

According to a dispatch received in this city Saturday, an Indian by the name of Alvis was murdered in a saloon brawl at Theodore, Wasatch county, by a white man late Friday afternoon. While details are not complete, the story goes that the Indian and some white men were drinking in a saloon at Theodore when a dispute arose over the refusal of the Indian to give up his whisky to the Indian. A general mix-up followed, and the Indian was attacked by a white man and killed. The murderer is said to be an old man between 65 and 70 years of age.

The Indian who was killed is said to be a member of the Ute tribe, and was living on the reservation in the vicinity of Fort Duchesne. Up to a few years ago the fort was occupied by government troops, but it was abandoned when the country was opened up to white settlers.

The office of Special Agent A. W. E. Johnson, at 613 Templeton building in this city, also received a dispatch from the Indian agent at White Rocks. According to Capt. Hall's message, however, the killing occurred at Stockmore, when a considerable distance further west from Fort Duchesne than Theodore. However, as Stockmore is inaccessible from the west in the winter time on account of impassable trails, there is only one road out of Theodore, no positive information could be had as to the real party between the killing occurred.

ASK GOVERNOR TO JOIN.

The Peace and Arbitration Society of the United States has extended an invitation to Gov. John C. Cutler to become a member of that organization. The society is an adequate armament on the part of the country, while it is working for peace among the nations. It is deemed inadvisable for any one country to reduce the size of army and navy, with the expectation that others will fall into line. The sentiment against war, it is thought, can best be waged while the country advocating peace is prepared for war. The ideas advanced by the society are endorsed by Gov. Cutler.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

Arrangements for Union Thanksgiving services among the evangelical denominations are as follows: The First Methodist, First Congregational, First Presbyterian, Baptist and Central Christian churches will meet in the First Methodist church at 11 a. m., Rev. Albert Buxton of the Christian church preaching the sermon; the Fifth Methodist, Phillips Congregational and Third Presbyterian will meet in the Third church, Rev. P. A. Simpkin of the Phillips church preaching the sermon; the Phillips Park Methodist church will hold service by itself, as will also the two Episcopal churches, St. Mark's service beginning at 10 o'clock, instead of at 11, as this hour is found more convenient. The Episcopal churches will hold holy communion at 8 a. m.

SEEK WAREHOUSE HERE.

H. L. Harrington of Ogden is in Salt Lake today looking over the ground for the establishment of headquarters in this city for a warehouse for the products of the Utah Canning company. Mr. Harrington says a great deal of the home products of this company are consumed in this city, and it has become necessary to have a place for storing the goods subject to order. He has looked over two or three buildings and sites, and the question of location will be determined in the near future.
